A Boston Opinion on Hoff's Malt Extract. Horr's Malt Extract is a new dictotic and bealing remedy, highly recommended by European physicians for complaints of the chest and stomach, dyspepsia, obstinate coughs, hoarsenes, etc.; also a relief in consumption, and a most excellent strengthener for women recovering from childhirth. This beer of health is also a pleasant table beverage, which many persons prefer to lager beer or ale. Its sate in this country, and especially in this city, atcadily increases, and it is a remarkable fact that no one who has used the Malt Extract has ever made a single complaint of it, while all are enthusiastic in its praise. A powerful argument in its favor—one that carries weight everywhere—is that the sole agents for America are Mesars. A WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN KILLED.

Lake Ransom, Manager of the Osborne Reaper Works, Cruelly Slain Near His Residence, in Hinsdale—Robbery the Evi-dent Object of the Crime—The Circum-stances of the Beed.

The citizens of the usually-quiet village of Hinsdale, eighteen miles from Chicago, on the shareholder in the Union Generale, has com-Chleago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, were startled this morning by the discovery that a murder had been committed during the night on one of the principal streets of the town. The discovery was first made at about 0:40 o'clock, as the Chicago business men were pursuing their way to the depot. Lying on his back, between the sidewalk and fence, they saw the dead body of a man. Across the sidewalk, near the roadway, lay an empty revolver, and the first theory was that the man had committed suicide. In their hurry to take the train the reporter's first informants were unable to identify the dead man, and could give no further facts than that he had hean shot in the head and slass in the left side.

been shot in the head and also in the left side.
The dirst shot had crushed his skull frightfully, and the poor fel-low's outpouring brains completely bailled his identification. The second shot gave evidence that the assassin must have been close onto his victim, as the heat of the ball had set the clothing on thre for a considerable space should be added. about the entrance.

about the entrance.

Later it was learned that the murdered man was Lake Ransom, a resident of Hinsdale, and manager of thereaper house of D. M. Osborn & Co., of 600 South Morgan street, Chicago. An empty pocket-book was found near at hand and several papers were strewn about the street, and near the body were found an old copper cent and a bag of small shot.

Mr. Ransom left the city for his home last night on the Dubuque passenger, and the supposition is that the assassin followed him out on the train and then sought his opportunity to kill and plunder. The nasassin followed him out on the train and then sought his opportunity to kill and plunder. The deceased was in comfortable circumstance, and had a wife and several chikiren. It is age was about 40 years. He was recently presented with an elegant watch by the firm and employes with which he was connected, and as the murderer had abundant time in which to rifle his victim, it is probable the watch has gone with the balance of the plunder. It was decided to hold an inquest at once, and a coroner at Turner Junction was telegraphed for.

The Stalwart Element About To Be Anni hilated by One Nichol.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.-Thomas M. Nichol, the 'Dear Nichol" of the letters recently published as having been written by Cartield, in a card in o-days Tribune, in reply to an attack by the New York Commercial Advertiser, in regard to the Cleveland Garfield monument, uses the following language:

"All you who glory in the name of stalwart, and who took part in the villideation and abuse of President Gardeld last summer—who sought to control his offitook part in the villitention and abuse of President Garfield last sunmer—who sought to control his official action or degrade and destroy his character and reputation—you are responsible for his murder. His blood is on the garments of the whole gang of you, and you cannot whe it off. You have been dealt with very tenderly touching your grave responsibility for this crime, but overyloody knows you are guilty, and you fool it yourselves in your innermost soin. It was your abuse and denunciation that "inspired Guiteau for remove the president as a political necessity, and you will not be permitted much longer to hide the stains on your hands or district attention from them by raising a dust around the heels of Histine, by throwing mud at Shorman or heaping ridicule on inc. Your crime was not merely the murder of a man—it was the transfer of the government by murder to the hands of a faction of the party, which, if the question could have been submitted to the people at the time it was done, would not have received one vote in a thousand. One would think that with such a fact hanging over your heads in the clear daylight of public knowledge, you would have sense and which a fact hanging over your heads in the clear daylight of public knowledge, you would have a fact hanging over your heads in the clear daylight of public knowledge, you would have sense onough, though destitute of all decency, to enjoy the lease of bower the assassing mave you while the law allows, without perelstently vilifying the chosen friends and associates of your victim, who was the nation's acknowledged criminals, morally responsible for, and could for feared a murder. But against you, on account of your friends and the good name of the community, the prosecuting witnesses are both to proceed. But when you treat merey as covardice, and to guilt add insecusion of the whole subject, proceed with your abuse."

VILLAINOUS PROSECUTION.

The Case of Rosa Hayes—The Woman Gullty of No Fault.

Mrs. Rosa Hayes came before Judge Smith on writ of habeas corpus this morning. Some days ago she was brought from Englewood and placed in the County jail, charged with crucity to her child. She and her husband were arrested on the complaint of a man named James Grant and brought before an Englewood justice. Grant and his wife testified there, that, of their knowledge, the child had there, that, of their knowledge, the chind had been abused and starved in such a manner that it died. On the strength of their testimony the mother was held to the Criminal court, but the father was discharged. Before Judge Smith the physician, who made a post-mortem exami-nation of the child, testified that it died not from insufficiant food, but from lack of power to assimilate its food. The wife of James (frant also testified that she had perjured herself on the trial before the justice, her has band forcing her to do so by threats and blows. She said her husband had caused the arrest of Mr.; and Mrs. Hayes that he might be revenged for some grudge he bore them. Her husband deserted her a week ago, and she feels free to tell the truth: Judge Stuth, after hearing the testimony, discharged ago, and she feels free to tell the truth: Judge Smith, after hearing the testimony, discharged Mrs. Hayes, and declared that there was no evidence of any crucky having been practiced. Rosa Hayes is a pleasant-featured, intelligent woman, but with an air of deep dejection and sorrow. The court expressed a strong desire to prosecute Grant for his villainy, if he should be caught.

OSCAR WILDE HAS COME.

HIS IDEA OF HIS TREATMENT.

He Thinks America a Fine Country, But Belleves the Press is Too Careless—The Ladles To Be the Developers of His Art Theories—An Interesting Talk.

"I am glad to see you," said Mr. Oscar Wilde, the famous Irish resthete, extending his hand to the reporter, and placing a chair in parlor 8, Grand Pacific hotel. And the voice was full of music, the striking face bright and genial, and the extended hand warm with feeling not to be mistaken.

What do you think of America as a country !" the reporter felt along.

"It is not a country. America is a vast world by itself, full of wonders to the visitor with eyes, and full of surprises. I liked New York eyes, and full of surprises. I liked New York very much for its cosmopolitan features; I liked Boston for its many literary reminiscences. In Baltimore I found pretty women, and in Philadelphia literary men."

"What is your theory on decorative art?"

"That it has been and will be done mostly by women. Men are so busy in the struggle for life and commercial supremacy that to the women must be relegated the task of sustaining and advancing decorative art; and this is women must be relegated the task of sustaining and advancing decorative art; and this is proper and as it should be."

"And your reception in America?"

"It has surprised me—that is, at first I could not understand it. But I very speedily became aware that this sort of thing resulted from gross misrepresentation by thoughtless and ignorant people and mismanagement of my business affairs. I feel it very bitterly and regret it to the utmost measure. When I begin my lecture I always feel that the first half of it. business affairs. I feel it very bitterly and regret it to the utmost measure. When I begin my lecture I always feel that the first half of it is delivered in a mist of folly and misrepresentation; but if I can win over my audience by the time I finish, I amghad."

"What do you think of the eastern people as a class!"

a class?"

"It is self-evident that they have caught much of the tinsel and filmsy nothings of Europe. Of course there is more art in the east than in the west, but I would much rather speak to a people devold of art than to a people bad in art."

"You have an object in this new departure?"

"Well, yes; rather, perhaps, am I fully imbued with the Celtic love of rebellion. I am a rebel in art as many of my countrymen are rebels in politics. I am a rebel because I object to these crude forms and rules one dare not to these crude forms and rules one dare not criticise. I imagine my mission to be that of a reformer, and I do not expect any more consideration from the general public than has been meted out to other reformers in the past nothing more, but at the same time it shall not 'And in the future-"

"What do you think of American newspa-pers!"
"They are particularly bright, but in many in-stances thoughtless. Why should a reporter— one of the calm, pleasant, polished fellows whom I delight to meet—call on me, receive my hospi-taility, and go out to his paper and causelessly and needlessly misrepresent met Is that journal-ism! Is that the treatment a gentleman should receive from a gentleman! However, the time has long since passed when anything possible for a newspaper to print can make me glad or for a newspaper to print can make me glad or sad. One cannot pause to read and discuss and fret over everything about oneself in the prints —one might as well pause on the streets and dispute the right of thoroughfare with every urchin. Misrepresentation cannot have a last-urchin. Misrepresentation cannot may ing effect."

"You will doubtless meet a large and respectful audience in Chicago."

"I hope so. It will make ma glad, and I am quite safe in thinking I shall leave friends here. I do not misrepresent myself, and hence the public will readily understand me and my work. Of all I have heard about Chicago, the good heart and intelligence of her people have been foremost."

"Will the decorative in art become popular!"

"Yes, as all things beautiful become popular.

The education of the eye produces precisely the same effect as the education of other organs or senses. Why should not a man or woman love that which adds charm to home and surround-ings! Who will not turn about to gaze on a beautiful child, a beautiful picture or statue! beautiful chid, a beautiful picture or statue;
Will not the people turn in love and admiration to that which is beautiful rather than cling to that which is uncouth and ill-shaped! "Twould be strange indeed if the latter prevailed."
"Then you are an educator!"

"Something of that sort. Your Morse had a difficult time in teaching the people to believe in his telegraphy; Fulton met many trials and disappointments in applying his steam to shipping, and your William Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips were maltreated in the public halls of Ractan hagainst they wantered the opinion, that dell Phillips were malificated in the public halls of Boston because they ventured the opinion that slaves should be free; because they were rebels against prevailing custom and popular opinion. However, the men triumphed, and in the city where they were most scorned are they now most loved and revered. Is not this poetic instead?

"On the whole, what is your impression of "On the whole, what is your impression of America?"
"Favorable, sir; favorable. Had I known as much of America ere I sailed as I have since learned, my reception in New York and my tour through this country night have been very different. However, that is a matter of the past which it is useless to discuss."

The reporter here withdrew and left Mr. Wilde to the consideration of a manmoth pile of mail. But the reporter left Mr. Wilde bearing away an impression for different from that ing away an impression far different from that with which he entered the aesthete's presence. To say that Mr. Wilde is a fascinating gentleman, polished and courteous in his manner and graceful in every movement, might not convey the desired idea of him. In form he is tall and well proportioned, and his face is one never to be forgotton—a long face, clear complexion, partially opened mouth displaying large, well-moided teeth, and, above all, a pair of wondefully deep, clear, blue eyes, honest, generous and kindly in their expression. The only point about him differing materially from any other about him differing materially from any other polished, elegant gentleman is the mass of brown hair partly sindowing the face. The hair is parted in the middle and hangs straight down to the neck, with never the suspicion of a kink or curl. So profuse is the hair that not a glimpse of the cars can be had, the was attired in a morning dress of modest brown, trimmed and faced on the coat-lappels with dark crimson, a narrow cord of the same with dark crimson, a narrow cord of the same color running down the outside seams of ample pantaloons. Mr. Wilde's accent is decidedly English, but not of othe cockney type. All in all, he is probably the most thoroughly misrepresented foreigner ever landed on American shores.

The Question Settled.

There's no use in arguing the question of the potency of some substances for especial service in emergencies. They will do all they promise, and more, if judiciously used. The following from Mr. P. Murphy, of No. I Fire Station, Ottawa, Camda, bears upon the point stated above. Mr. Murphy says: I had occasion to use St. Jacobs Oli recently, and must say that it is the best Lintment I ever used. I caught cold from getting wet at a fire, and it settled in my shoulder and down my back to my hip. I suffered a great deal from the pain. I was advised to try St. Jacobs Oli. I did so, and after the fourth upplication I was entirely free from pain. I cannot speak two highly of it, and udvise others to use it.—Adv.

SPORTING MATTERS.

THE PUGILISTS.

John L. Sullivan, the victorious pugilist, arrived this morning over the Illinois Central road, accompanied by his trainer, Billy Madden, Bob Farrell, "Parson" Davies, Kilbride, of Boston. Mike O'Brien, Lieut. Currier, of the police, and Detective Rvan. Pete McCoy was left behind at Cairo, where he was accidently caught in the crowd that gathered at the station to see the party go through. The sporting men went at once to the Commercial hotel, which Sullivan will make his hendquarters while in the city. Sullivan does not have a scretch and Sullivan will make his headquarters while in the city. Sullivan does not bear a scratch, and he was in the highest spirits when he arrived this morning. The journey from New Orleans was an ovation. The people along the line of the road had information of the train that the champion would be on, and at every station where a stop was made immense crowds surrounded the cars and clamored for a sight at the great puglist. Sullivan did not gratify them, however. In his party was a well-known sporting man familiarly called "Big Steve." He is of great stature, and when the crowds became unduly clamorous to appease their curiosity he was taken out on the platform and introduced as Sullivan. This joke was several times repeated, and on each occasion. Steve made a repeated, and on each occasion. Steve made a speech. The result of this is that Sulliuan has now the reputation of an orator as well as a lighter between here and the Crescent city. A GAME OF BILLIARDS.

A match game of billiards, three-ball French carom, between Walter R. Vance and Charles Atwood, formerly amateur champion of Illinois, is attracting some attention in local sporting circles. The forfeit money was put up on Feb. 7, and as Atwood is somewhat out of practice, he was allowed ten days in which to recover himself. He is capable of making runs of 75 and 50, and does not feel that his $100 is in any

THE DAY IN WALL STREET.

Various Rumors of Reorganizations—Fluctu-utions of the Board.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.-The bears in the stockmarket are predicting an unfavorable bank statement to-day, and lower prices, while the bulls are confident of a better market next week, if not to-day. It is understood considerable opposition was developed yesterday to the C., C. & I. C. reorganization scheme, and will be likely to appear at the meeting this afternoon. A Wall street journal, referring to the break in Southern Pacific, intimates that manipulators of stock are putting false stories affoat to enable them to buy back at low figures the stock they sold at much higher, prices. The whole affair is, it is said, a stock-jobbing operation, and has nothing to do with the value of property. The pool were buying again at the close yesterday.
